Familiar Scenes at Wilson Memorial

Henry's Celebrating His Second Birthday

Celebrating his second birthday, Henry the Hornet happily returns to caper through the pages of the 1951 annual. Not only has Henry found time to enroll in all the classes but he has enjoyed all the extra curricular activities open to students at Wilson Memorial. He has always been at the top in everything but this year it has been more difficult for him because of the large student body which numbers 1300, an increase over former years.

Henry, because he tried to take part in so many activities, became fast friends with two of the schools' newcomers—Poo-Ella-Larson and Google-Eyed-Gus, who were created as reporters for the "Wilson Echo" by the Journalism class. These three have made an interesting trio and very little has escaped their sharp eyes and listening ears.

While attending the basketball games, Henry found out that Wilson needed a scoreboard in the gym to easier record those Wilson victories and he talked the 1950 graduates into buying one to leave as a gift to the school. This new electric scoreboard now hangs in one end of the gym as another proven accomplishment of the students at Wilson.

Wishing to know how his voice really sounded to other people, Henry decided that Wilson needed a disc recorder. He wasn't quite the first to think of this, as several of the teachers and club members had already gotten the idea and made the request that it be bought. With the aid of the school finances a disc recorder was purchased and recordings can be made daily in any classroom for teaching purposes. Henry has delighted his hearers with his French recordings.

Henry was amazed at the beginning of the year to find that the faculty had many new faces among the 55 members. He always enjoyed visiting Mr. Garrett's Phys. Ed classes but Uncle Sam decided early in October that Mr. Garrett was "for him" so Henry bid him a fond farewell.

Henry was one of the first to welcome Miss Sherman back to her teaching position in the Home Ec. Department after an absence of 5 months.

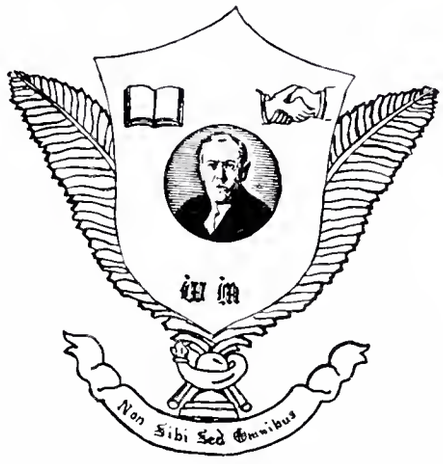

These are just a few of the interesting things Henry has done this year but if you will turn through the following pages you may go with him on a few of his capers.

We are proud to have the friendship of Henry the Hornet and hope he will return to scamper through the corridors of Wilson next year.

DEDICATED

TO

HUGH K. CASSELL

The Superintendent of Augusta County Schools

We respectfully dedicate the 1951 HORNET'S NEST in recognition of the distinguished service which he has rendered the cause of education in Augusta County and the state of Virginia.

For more than a generation as classroom teacher, principal, superintendent of schools, and leader in professional organizations, he has shown by example those finer qualities of living which come only with a true understanding of ones fellowman.

We, the members of the HORNET'S NEST staff, are honored to have this opportunity to express our appreciation to Mr. Cassell for his outstanding work in our behalf and in the behalf of all youth everywhere. Without his efforts, the story of WILSON MEMORIAL HIGH SCHOOL would not be complete.

We dedicate this 1951 volume of the HORNET'S NEST with deepest respect and admiration to Mr. Hugh K. Cassell.

In Recognition Of Those Who Have Graduated From Wilson Memorial High School And Are Now Serving With Uncle Sam

It seems fitting that in this 1951 HORNET'S NEST, we the members of the staff should give special recognition to those young men and women who have graduated from Wilson Memorial High School since its founding in September 1947 and who are now serving their country in some branch of the Armed Forces.

We feel these young men and women have been called upon to sacrifice much in their early life but because they have learned well the principles which we as a democracy hold dear do not feel anything they sacrifice too much.

This high school was made possible only a few years ago as a result of World War II. Along these corridors and in these classrooms recuperated boys who had been wounded on the battlegrounds and these buildings previously used as a hospital were turned over to Augusta County and the State of Virginia to be used as an educational center. Thus was born Wilson Memorial High School, one of the good things coming out of a barbarious cruel war.

Now we are again in the midst of even more troublesome times and our young men and women have been called upon to help bring peace out of chaos to the world. To these graduates who are now serving in their country's forces we are wishing the best of luck and we would like to say, "Well done. We are proud of you."

Senior Class History

Let's see, what have we as a class done to make us famous? Oh yes! We are the first class to have spent four years at Wilson getting an education. No, we're not dumb, we just happened to have started here as freshmen. Yes siree, we, the graduating class of '51 are proud of the fact that we are the first class to spend four years of our life getting an education at this wonderful school.

Back in the seventh grade we heard the news that they were going to combine the four schools into one big consolidated school. That meant that we would have to come here as Freshmen. The only friends we would have would be the ones at our small schools. If we were put into one big school, we would only know about two or three hundred people out of about 1200. And the way they mixed us up. Oh, how would we ever get along?

Our Freshman year went by fast as we made new friends and participated in the many activities. In spite of the fact that we were frightened, we got along beautifully with one another.

Finally after months of diligent study we became Sophomores. By this time we had become well acquainted with the school and had made many new friends. We became interested in more and more activities.

Then as time rolled on we became Juniors, another step higher in our education. The main event of our Junior year was the "Junior-Senior Prom" that we sponsored for the Seniors.

And now, here we are, Seniors, Whew! If it had not been for Mr. McChesney, our principal, and his wonderful faculty, we never would have made it. Never-the-less, here we are, 220 proud Seniors of the graduating class of 1951, leaving a school that we will never forget.

Junior Class History

In the only great year of our Lord, 1948, 302 "Timid" Freshmen stumbled into Wilson. Gaining seven "Wise" Sophomores in "49", we maneged to walk through the doors of Wilson without being pushed. And now, with the sum total of 265 members, we are called "Noble" Juniors.

Juniors, can you believe it??? We have three big, hard years of high school behind us, and only one more to go—(for some of us). Just the thought of graduating in "52" makes most of us feel—"you know how"!

Do you remember in 1948, classmates, when we were floundering from class to class? But we got used to those long corridors and learned all the short cuts.

Our Sophomore year could never be forgotten with all those good assemblies, wonderful parties and oh! yes our popularity we gained in Varsity Sports.

This year finds us real business-like, electing our class officers with care, attending assemblies promptly and oh! yes, "feeling our oats".

Our goal now is to become those long awaited "Dignified" Seniors.

Sophomore Class History

On the seventh day of September a number of vacation weary, and some not so weary looking characters straggled into the halls of Wilson Memorial. We were those last year's green horns returning with years experience. Old friends were met and new classes, ruled over by new teachers were attended.

We, as Sophomores, were already familiar with the system at Wilson but on the first day there lay before us the ever present undertakings of getting used to new classes, schedules, and so on, but after a few mistakes and changes we were ready to settle down to a year's hard work.

At an assembly during the first weeks of school, officers were elected and plans laid for the coming year. A well planned sports calendar was presented to us for our enjoyment. A few of our class are participants in athletics which makes for added enthusiasm but all who attended those planned activities agree that we have something to look forward to.

Several socials and parties have been enjoyed during this year and we are looking forward to the time when we will be another year nearer our goal of graduation.

We wish to give credit to those who have helped to make our Sophomore year a memorable one; mainly our homeroom teachers and the school administration.

Freshman Class History

On September fifth a new experience started for some 480 boys and girls from 7 schools in Augusta County. On that day the eighth graders from Stuarts Draft, New Hope, Fishersville, Beverley Manor, Greenville, Crimora and Middlebrook schools assembled in the gym to begin their new life at Wilson as Freshmen.

We all thought we were lost in the long corridors and in the maze of classrooms, but with the help of Mr. McChesney, the teachers and upper classmen we were soon headed in the right direction and knew every nook of the area.

School life at Wilson is not as dull and drab as we had expected; in fact with the many diversified activities we find it very interesting and enjoyable. We all feel that if the rest of our high school life is as enjoyable as this first year has been we will never regret a minute of it.

We the members of the Freshman class would like to take this opportunity to thank our principals, teachers, and upper classmates for the cooperation and helpfulness they have given us in making this a profitable and enjoyable first year at Wilson.

Activities

"The Hornet's Nest" Staff

The HORNET'S NEST staff is composed of members of the four classes. Each department is headed by a senior.

Probably the hardest work of the staff is handling pictures and soliciting ads. Also devoting all activities periods and some afternoons may seem hard but it's fun! The year is highlighted for the staff by an annual banquet in the spring.

We wish to thank both students and faculty for their cooperation in making the 1951 HORNET'S NEST a success.

What group is the main governing body of the school? The Student Council assumes this duty and is conducted in strict parliamentary procedure. This organization is composed of one representative from each club and homeroom along with four class presidents. These members meet every Tuesday to discuss and recommend ways of bettering the school and its policies.

The S. C. A. plans and promotes general assemblies held several times a year and this year sponsored a dance for students, alumni, faculty and their guests. Money was appropriated for various uses in the school including a tape recorder, band uniforms, and capes for Mrs. Talley's music group. The big project of the year is the planning and drawing up of a workable Honor System. Suggestions for bettering the school are discussed in S. C. A. and if they are found favorable they are made into the form of a recommendation and taken to the faculty.

Officers who were elected in the spring of 1950 are Hunter Mabry, President; Jimmy Pence and Paul Desper, 1st and 2nd Vice President respectively; Ann Massincupp, Secretary; Jack Blacka, Treasurer; and Don Shoemaker, Reporter. Faculty advisors include Mr. McChesney, Mr. DeHaven and Mr. Davis.

Pep Club

I'm sure you've seen the posters in the corridors of the coming games. Have you ever stopped to think who put them there? Well, the Pep Club is responsible. They also had charge of the three Pep Rallys Held here this fall and they conduct the store in the Social Center in the mornings. The Annual Athletic Dance honoring the members of the teams and their guests is one of the big events of the year and is sponsored by the members of the Pep Club.

The main goal of the Club is to promote school spirit. That is a pretty big job but the Pep Club members love every minute of it. Recently the officers were elected. They are Betty McCune, President; Bonnie Sue Coursey Vice President; Annie O'Brien, Secretary; Mabel Dutton, Treasurer; Lucille Painter, Reporter; and Mrs. J. A. McCrary, Faculty Advisor.

The Junior Red Cross Club

The Junior Red Cross Club is an organization that was started in our school last year. It is composed of boys and girls who do not have more than one activity in our school. There are about 42 members in the club this year. The club emphasizes the making of various things for the National Junior Red Cross, proper procedure in conducting meetings, and recreation for its members. The boys in the club have made a number of ash trays, smoking stands, checkerboards and lapboards for the JRC and the girls have made scuff slippers, card table covers, memo pads, scrapbooks and a number of other items. These will be distributed by the JRC to veterans hospitals, childrens hospitals, etc. Another major objective of the Junior Red Cross Club is the filling of 40 gift boxes each year to be sent to underprivileged children overseas.

Officers of the club this year are as follows: John Humphries, President; Barbara Fitzgerald, Vice President; Bobby Rexrode, Secretary; Jo Humphreys, Treasurer; Howard Kelley, Reporter; Glenn Fulwider, Student Counselor; Mr. G. W. Swartz and Mrs. Hunter Shomo, Faculty Sponsors.

The high school club is affiliated with both the state and national organizations and the members take an active part in the organization as a whole.

Among the many club projects this year have been the conducting of the Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Drive for the high school, setting up displays in local merchants' windows promoting T. B. X-rays, buying for the gift boxes for the American Junior Red Cross, and decorating for school dances and activities. The business meetings have included guest speakers in the field of retailing and other leading citizens in the community. At the beginning of the year the members set to work to revise the Constitution of the club and voted to become a member of the National Organization. The regular meetings are held on the second and fourth Thursday in the Conference Room.

In November the following officers were elected:

JOHN DOWELL ..... President
SARAH VARNER ..... Vice President
JENNY MAE FORBES ..... Secretary
MARGIE FITZGERALD ..... Treasurer
CHARLENE COURSEY ..... Reporter

Safety Club

The Safety Club meets with Mr. J. W. Berry on the first Thursday of each month in the conference room. Only boys who have been chosen and approved by Mr. Gilkerson, Mr. Dehaven, Mr. Berry and the agriculture teachers and those boys who have proven their capability in operating buses are allowed to transport students to and from Wilson. These boys and their substitutes make up the greater part of the safety club.

The purpose of the meetings is to present problems confronting the drivers and to discuss policies of safe and efficient bus operation.

The number of buses has increased to twenty-five this year. These buses transport approximately 1150 students to and from points in the county as far as Swoope, Greenville, Sherando, Harriston, and McKinley.

Our bus service this year has been much better since the county garage was moved to Wilson. The bus driver can tell the mechanic what is wrong with his bus, thus getting more effic'ent service. If the bus does not need the services of the garage, the driver parks it on a specified lot and fills out a daily gas report for Mr. Guffey, our bus attendant at Wilson.

This year we have again posted lists of students and time schedules in the buses. These schedules are followed closely by the driver so that the student will know when to expect the bus.

In addition to our duty as bus drivers we have given our services in patrolling at football games and other activities. It has also been our aim to make the students at Wilson safety conscious.

Officers are:

CHARLES MARKS ..... President
HARRY BEARD ..... Vice-President
AUSTIN HATTER ..... Secretary
TOMMY WOMBLE ..... Treasurer
MR. J. W. BERRY ..... Adviser

Latin Club

The Latin Club this year is made up of first and second year students, and those who have completed two years of Latin. In early September the following officers were named:

SARAH VARNER ..... President
VIRGINIA WOMBLE ..... Vice President
JOHN R. DOWELL ..... Secretary
PATSY LUTZ ..... Treasurer
JACK MASON ..... Reporter

In December Jack left us and the president appointed Virginia Wise to fill out the unexpired term.

The club plans to issue a newspaper as it did last year. A Festival of Gods is also planned. At this Festival the main Roman Gods will be named from the language clubs.

The club was named "Heres to Latin" in October and adopted as its motto: "Non est vivere sed volere vita" or "Life is accomplishment not mere existence."

The club is established to prove to students that Latin is not all work and no play. The students find by attending the Latin Club that there is much fun in taking part in the projects sponsored by club. Some of these projects are: The presentation of short plays in Latin; the studying of old costumes; finding Latin mottoes on money and seals and many more things which keep interest high in the club.

We owe much to our faithful sponsor Mrs. Lutz. Her work with the Latin Club has been commended by all of its members. With her guidance the projects for the club have been set up and are being carried out.

We hope we are accomplishing something in our club life not merely existing.

Cheerleader Members: Joe Palmer, Ada Ann Blackwell, Ann O'Brien, Shirley Wright, Bill Overdorf, Jane Crute, Margaret Boyd Berry and Jewell Campbell.

The Wilson Cheering Section

This year four newcomers were added to the cheerleading squad. Those chosen were Jane Crute, Ada Blackwell, Joe Palmer and Bill Overdorf. The entire group consisting of eight has carried out their job of stimulating interest in athletics and backing all phases of the school's athletic program.

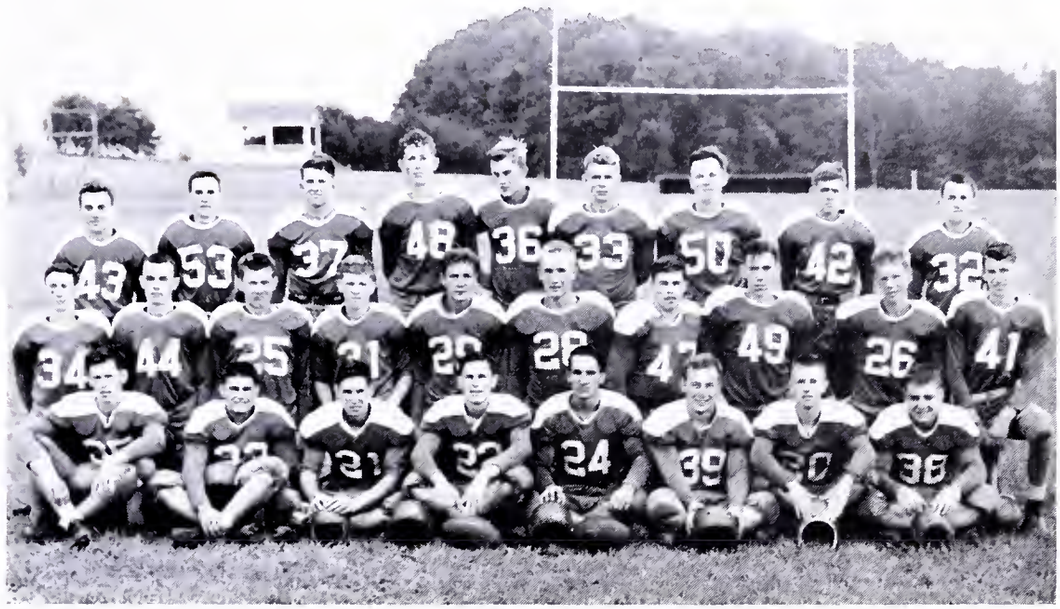

Anne O'Brien was chosen as head cheerleader for the year and has found the cooperation between the cheerleaders a real pleasure and inspiration. Several new and original yells have been contributed by Jewell and Ada Ann. Mrs. McCrary, as sponsor, has been helpful and made fun out of work for all concerned.

Another new addition this year has been that of the idea of having Junior Varsity cheerleaders who work under the direction of Miss Monahan and Miss Meade. These girls are either Freshmen or Sophomores and stand in line for position as a Varsity cheerleader next year. The members of this group are:

Algebra

Algebra is a subject
You sometimes take in school;
To get by in this class,
You have to know each rule.
You have to stay right with the class,
So study hard each night,
You must learn to be accurate
And get each problem right.

In class you work upon the board
And learn to help each other,
If you have a hard problem at home
Then you get help from Mother.
When test day comes along
And you just barely get by,
Miss Eisenberg seems to think
That you didn't even try.

And as the six-weeks ends
You know you'll get an A or B,
Then your report card says
You only got a C.
But you'll know better
Than to take this class next year,
You'll pick something easier
Than this one was to bear.

A THUNDER STORM

Big white clouds boiled on the western horizon like baskets of cotton being turned over and over. That was a sure sign of rain, being as hot and sultry as it was. Horses and wagons were brought from the barn to start the day's work of bringing in the hay. The two of us knew we would have to work hard in order to get the precious alfalfa in before the inevitable thunderstorm in the afternoon. All morning we pitched, loaded, unloaded and watched the constantly boiling clouds growing larger and darker and piling higher into the sky. In the early afternoon with at least two more loads of hay in the field, the sun had been covered by the ever increasing dark clouds. As we had almost finished loading the last load, the wind began to blow, cooling the air. Rain was on its way, as it had hid the distant mountains completely. As the last shock was loaded, lightning flashed and cracked, thunder clapped and then rumbled off like a huge chariot rushing through a cobble-stone street. The horses reared and galloped, fearful of the impending storm. As the rain beat mercilessly down on us, we kept wishing the barn was closer, but it was soon reached and the wagons pulled inside to be unloaded later. Outside the lightning flashed again and again, followed by thunder which roared like an angry lion. Little muddy streams of water began running down the hills and into the ditches. Because it was raining too hard to go to the house, we stayed in the barn watching and waiting for the rain to slacken. About an hour later the sun shone brightly and a rainbow was painted against the eastern sky. The fields were fresh and green again as though they just had an early morning bath, but above all the hay was saved for the winter feed.

MY FLOWERS

I plant my flowers in the spring,
While robins hop around and sing.
I plant the seeds there row by row,
Then I sit back and watch them grow.

I take some time from my play,
To tend my flowers every day.
Day by day they have grown tall,
Far above the garden wall.

And I imagine I can hear
Everyone from far and near,
Speaking of my flowers so sweet,
As they pass along the street.

A FRIGHTFUL NIGHT

We had been waiting somewhat impatiently for this day for a long time. Mr. Brannan's old station wagon rattled over the dirt road, carrying me and eight other giggling girls to the old deserted farmhouse where we were to spend the night. Mr. Brannan, after cautioning us and reminding us to behave ourselves, got into his "bucket of bolts" as he called his station wagon and started back to town.

It was the middle of August and one of the hottest days of that summer. It stayed hot until about twelve-thirty that night when the wind began to blow, a little at first and then harder and harder until the entire house shook, window panes fell out and crackled on the floor. It began to rain, not a gentle sleepy rain, but a terrifying, jerking rain that with the help of the wind forced its way through the old oak trees that surrounded the house, tearing off branches that fell on the old tin roof and onto the ground. Lightning came in tremendous sheets which illuminated the whole farm. Then the thunder roared and grumbled, as if mocking the lightning and shaming it for not damaging anything on the earth. All at once, like an assembly which is called to order the night became a tranquil one. The storm was over. But still within us was that gripping fear of darkness and night and the horror it brings to mind.

THE ODD CEMETERY

While taking one of my autumn Sunday afternoon walks I came upon a cemetery of many years back. I walked among the stones, looking at the almost invisible odd names on them. Over in one corner under a large oak tree, the ruins of an old vault caught my attention. All trace of identification was gone, as the top and sides had fallen in. The day was warm and sunny and I was tired so I sat down against the vault to rest. A few minutes later, a cloud of smoke came up from the vault, out of it came a little imp who sat down on the ruins of the vault. He gave me a scowl and started to fire questions in my direction so rapidly that I didn't have time to answer them. "Where did I come from, Who was I? What was I doing here?, and When was I going to leave?" Then he blew a whistle and from each grave came one of the same strange little imps. They all came on the run to the vault of the first imp, whose name I found out later was Jimmy John, the leader of the imps. They all looked at me very strangely but not a one said a word. First roll was called and when I heard the funny names and funny voices, I laughed in spite of myself. Each turned and gave me a nasty look so I thought I had better control my emotions hereafter. Next a business meeting was held and the main discussion was me! Jimmy John asked me his list of questions over, but this time he let me answer them and after he was through, I was sure he knew all about me. A motion was then made and passed that I be excuted for finding them. I had a hearty laugh then because the thought of ninety-nine little imps executing me was just too much. They all gave me another hard look, but proceeded to vote on how they would carry out the motion. Thirty-three wanted me beheaded, thirty-three wanted me burned at the stake and thirty-three wanted me hanged. Jimmy John decided to do all three by first hanging me, then beheading me and then letting my body and head fall into the fire. By this time I was beginning to wonder if I was safe or not. Before I could move, most of them had rushed me, tied me hand and foot and put a rope and sack over my head. Close by I heard a fire crackle as I felt myself being dragged to stand on the ruins of the vault. The rope was put over an overhanging limb and just as I was going to be pushed off the vault I opened my eyes. What on earth had happened anyway? I felt my neck as it hurt a little and there were rope burns on it! I hurried home wondering just what had happened, but to this day, I still don't know.

VIEWING A STORM FROM THE FIELDS

It was a hot July afternoon. The sky was a brilliant shade of blue and old man sun was shining with all his force. Farmers were working in the fields, harvesting their golden sheaves of wheat.

Then suddenly, as if appearing from nowhere, came a small puffy white cloud. Soon larger white clouds boiled up around the small one. The farmers kept on working, not noticing the change taking place in the heavens. In a few more minutes the beautiful white clouds had changed into a dark ominous black color. The heavy clouds soon blotted out the sun's rays and the farmers noticed the change. The atmosphere became hot and sticky, and a hot breeze brought the fragrant smell of rain.

The farmers grabbed their water jugs, climbed on the wagons and headed toward the barn. But the storm was faster than the men, for a low warning rumble came from the billowing black sky. A flash of light made the green in the hills very vivid and the land seemed almost sinister in its brilliance. A loud clap of thunder shook the ground and re-echoed from the hills. Feeling the first few drops of rain, some of the animals hurried toward the barn; chickens, fluttering and squawking, hurried to shelter. The rain began to fall harder upon the men in the wagons, but they reached the barn before the storm became too severe. The wind blew the now heavy downpour in all directions, and the lightning and thunder raged on.

This did not last long, for soon the thunder rumbled away and the flashes of lightning grew dimmer. The black clouds rolled back, revealing patches of bright blue and a colorful rainbow arched itself across the western part of the sky. The storm had done no damage, but had washed everything in its pathway and left it dripping with water and shining brightly. Soon the sun broke through the clouds, drying everything it touched and enabling the farmers to complete their job on the morrow.

THE WINDOW SCENE

Waking after what seemed like an endless night both eyes popped open with a snap and behold: what a glorious sight, for Jack Frost's trail was thick on the window pane and the sun, which was coming over the snow capped hill, was making it stand out like thousands of diamonds pitched together. Finally Jack's design was melted away and I could see millions of little snow flakes resting quietly after their long journey downward.

I looked out in the other direction and I could see the cows coming in to the barn for their morning feed and behind them, a little calf which looked as fresh and clean as the top layer of snow.

Across the hill from the barn were the pine trees, now drooping under the weight of the snow on their long, slender branches. Beside them, tall and straight, stood the walnut, oak and other trees; on their limbs were tiny birds shaking the snow from their frail bodies.

Again I shifted my view and I could see the neighbors' houses, each with a big white hat shining very brightly under the winter sun. Then I could see the huge snow plow creeping slowly but surely down the snow drifted road. Mother called, but I didn't want to go to school when the earth was like one big fluffy marshmallow, until I remembered that today was December 22 and we were going to make candy and cookies for the holidays.

INSIDE A PURSE

One day as I was walking down the street I suddenly glanced down at my feet and there lay a purse which some unfortunate woman or girl had dropped.

I picked it up and carried it home, there to find some kind of identification. But alas! What complications I ran into when I opened this purse. From the things it seemed to contain it looked more like a pawn shop than a purse.

The first thing I found inside of it was a small change purse which contained a memorandum, a half of a stick of gum, a love note and last, but not least, twelve-cents.

As I ventured farther into this "pawn shop" I found three kleenex, one pencil, a pen, two 3 cent stamps, a pair of scissors, and a fingernail file.

Yet from this shop I had removed only a small fraction of the things it contained. Other things found were an unfinished letter, an envelope addressed to someone in Ohio, a shoe string, fifty hair pins, a scarf, three pairs of stockings, a toy truck, an eraser, a pocket dictionary, a bag of candy, a folder full of pictures which contained no kind of identification and a wrist watch which was not running. At last, right at the bottom, I found a driver's permit. (If a cop ever stopped this person, I don't know how she would have found it.) From this permit I learned that the person to whom it belonged was Mrs. Progress who lived at 307 Willow Road.

But, to my sorrow I could not get everything back into the purse. The only thing left for me to do was to write her a letter and tell her to come and get her belongings, so I wrote her the letter that follows:

"Dear Mrs. Progress,

I am happy to inform you that I found your purse on the street the other day. It was necessary for me to remove the contents of the purse to find some kind of identification, but to my sorrow I could not get the articles back into the purse. I would like for you to please come by my house and pick up your purse. I live at 3216 West Street. I will be expecting you."

Yours truly,
John West

THE VASE

The November wind whipped around the lawns of the elaborate homes on Walnut Avenue, carrying the falling leaves from one place to another. It was a cold, damp wind that threatened to bring rain any minute. It was now about dusk and all day it had been cold and dreary.

The Dabney home, on Walnut Avenue had a rock walk which led up to the porch with its huge ivory columns. On a tremendous white door at the center of the porch was a large brass doorknocker. On the bottom of the doorknocker was a shiny brass plate inscribed John R. Dabney, M. D.

Inside the house beside the fireplace stood Dr. Dabney's only child, Martha. But Martha was no longer a child; she was a young girl of eighteen. Martha could not remember her mother, who had been dead for seventeen years. Except for this, Martha had had everything that money would buy, and a very devoted father; therefore she wanted for nothing.

She sat down on the sofa and began to think back over the last hour and a half. She remembered rushing into the house and finding her father laughing and gay. But his mood changed when she asked him for three hundred dollars to buy an outfit. She remembered the stern look in his eyes when he had said no. She begged and finally grew angry and demanded that he give in. He spoke sharply to her for the first time in her memory. She seized with one hand a vase which had belonged to her mother. Rashly she threw it at her father. It had missed him and smashed through the huge picture window at the front of the parlor. Then as if determined to punish her, he had crumpled to the floor. She had run to him; it was a heart attack—he had had them before. This time he was dead!

She had fainted. When she came to the house was crowded with people. An ambulance had been called and her father had been carried away. Everyone was waiting for her to tell what had happened but she had given them a false explanation and ordered them out of the house.

That is why Martha Dabney sat in the cold dark house, too frightened and too upset for tears. She got up and made her way across the room. Beside the window she kneeled and began to pick up the pieces of her mother's vase. It was smashed and broken but it could be put together again. She would glue it together but scars would be left. Martha began to compare her life with the vase. She could patch things up but there would always be a dark spot in her life. She would start a new life anyway, and tomorrow she would be different.

MUSIC

Clashing chords, chromatic scales,
  Eighth notes must be played with skill.
C scale, G scale, many more,
  Dancing notes the measures fill.

Major scales have minor keys,
  Some may sound a little queer.
Music with its mellow tones,
  Seems to float into the ear.

When there's music in the air,
  Things just always go all right.
If you feel a little blue,
  Music helps to make things bright.

—Isabel Redard

REVERSE

By day upon a hollow limb,
  An owl sits in a tree.
When I look up I can see him,
    But he cannot see me.

By night the owl sits in a tree,
  Out upon a limb.
When he looks down he can see me,
  But I cannot see him.

CHRISTMAS SNOW

Drifting, sifting through the cedars;
  Drawing white lines through the night;
Gleaming, streaming by the windows,
  Bright with colored Christmas light.

Curling, swirling 'round the chimney;
  Piling blankets on the roof
Over sleeping, peeping children,
  Listening for a reindeer hoof.

Peeping, creeping over hilltops;
  Lighting sparkles on the snow;
Meeting, greeting a white morning,
  Comes the sun with Christmas glow.

THE SHADOW OF A DOUBT

Most of the village of Villeroi was squeezed into the courtroom. The accused man sat in the prisoner's box and rested his fat hands upon the rail.

Phillippe Durand, the famous defense attorney from Brussels who had cheated the gallows sixty-three times in sixty-five murder trials, was a baldish little man whose suit could have used a pressing.

"Gentlemen of the jury," he began quietly. "Henri Volpin is accused of the murder of seven women. For almost a week I have listened as your prosecutor tightened the noose around my client's neck.

"Now I ask you to remember that no eyewitness has been produced. No one has found so much as a fingernail of the missing girls. The prosecutor's case is based entirely on circumstantial evidence—some half remembered words, a button here, a few women's shoes.

"At this moment, if you were polled, I know what your verdict would be. Some of you would even be glad to help with the rope.

"Henri Volpin is a quiet little man and I doubt if anyone has ever given him a second look during the forty-one years he has lived in Villeroi. And in a small village that is not the usual thing. An extra glass of cognac, a walk with a girl is enough to get a man talked about.

"According to the testimony this is what happened: One evening a car drove up to your only hotel. An expensively dressed young man and a girl wearing no stockings demanded and got the best room. The hotelkeeper's wife testified she heard loud talking in their room the next morning. She told you that the young man drove away and left the girl behind. That afternoon the strange girl walked into the little cafe where Henri was reading the paper over a beer. She sat down with him.

"The waiter told you Henri bought a bottle of cognac, and the pair discussed going to Volpin's home. The girl was never seen again. The Learned prosecutor has produced no one who saw the pair enter the defendant's house. But he offers as evidence a high heeled shoe found in Volpin's kitchen. The hotelkeeper's wife has recognized it as belonging to the strange girl.

"Next you heard the testimony concerning Louise Rohn, the schoolteacher from Saint-Vith. The head of the school at Saint-Vith told you that Mlle. Rohn resigned her position to come to Villeroi and marry a bookkeeper named Volpin. The cartman swore he deposited the lady and her baggage in front of the defendant's door. The prosecutor showed you a brown walking shoe found in Volpin's wine cellar and Mlle. Rohn's sister came from Saint-Vith and positively identified it.

"You have heard the detailed testimony concerning the disappearance of five other girls under more or less similar circumstances.

"This is the case against Henri Volpin. Remember, it is not a capital offense to collect shoes. Under the law you must not send Henri Volpin to his death unless you are convinced, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that he committed murder."

He paused looking at each juror in turn. "I say you do doubt," he whispered, "even though you may not be aware of it yourselves."

"There is no doubt!" shouted the sister of the missing schoolteacher.

The judge quieted the courtroom and the paunchy little lawyer continued. "If one of the girls you are so sure is dead were to walk into this courtroom what would you say? Would you still be sure the other six were dead? Would you still be sure there is no doubt."

He slowly raised his arm and pointed to the green door in the back of the courtroom. "Gentlemen of the jury," he commanded, "I ask you to direct your eyes to that door."

There was a sharp intake of breath as heads throughout the courtroom turned. The stenographer stopped writing. A small boy in the front of the room stood up.

"Forgive me for building up your hopes. Forgive me for this shabby little trick. No one is going to walk through that door. But I was the only one in this courtroom who was sure of that. Everybody else thought someone might. In every mind there was a doubt. Gentlemen of the jury, if there was doubt in your mind you must acquit this man."

Philip Durand sat down.

As the jury filed out the stenographer leaned over and whispered to the man next to him, "That lawyer from Brussels is really something. Volpin will walk out of here a free man."

But the verdict was guilty. The sentence was death by hanging.

One of the jurors had noticed that Volpin had never once looked toward the door.

My Dearest Joy,

I want use two pages like Maggy did because I can say what I feel in three little words. I love you, Joy, with all my heart. I do now and I always will. When I look back over the few short months I've known you and think of some of the things we've done, I find I wouldn't trade those cherished moments for any things in the world.

I know you think this is just a lot of bull...., but its known deep in my heart to be the truth.

Maggy said I would make you a good husband. I don't know how good I'd be, but I hope I can be your husband some day.

Maggy doesn't know how I feel about you or she wouldn't have said everything would probably be changed by next year. I know I'll never change about you.

I said I wouldn't write two pages so I'll keep my word.

Yours always

Ted

WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER

Sometimes it is the nature of a craft to create an unbreakable tie between itself and the worker in that field, a heart attachment equal to lifetime devotion. One familiar example is PRINTING. Once editor, once compositor, or pressman catches the spirit of the shop, the spell is seldom broken. Like the odor of a camp fire, or a whiff of salt air, the beloved tang of printer's ink, symbolical of a great profession, gets into your heart and soul. School Annuals, Magazines, Newspapers and Special Printing, all smack of it. It is an invisible link that binds all intelligence together. It is the stimulus for creation in business or romance. This craftsmanship, this devotion to service and alertness to business needs, has nourished and developed an enormous industrial vitality, and whichever way the course of the future runs, the printer will always find himself able to adapt his helpfulness to new opportunity.

Years of experience have taught us! Printing Pays Us Only When It Pays You!
